Trustees Office, Edinburgh, Nov. 14. 1799.

WHEREAS the Commissioners and Trustees for Manufactures, &c. did, by their Printed Regulations, of the 6th October 1789, order,

"That every Piece of Osnaburgs or Coarse Linen, whatever it is length may be, after being stamped, shall be rolled up and exposed to sale, separately and by stell; and that no Weaver, Manufacturer, or Dealer, shall put up, either for the Home or Foreign Market, two or more Parts or Pieces into one.

"That, when the said Cloth is equally and properly waven, the Stampmaster shall not only always impress the National Stamp, and the length and breadth on both ends, but also the shall stamp, and the length and breadth on both ends, but also the shall stamp, and the length and breadth on both ends, but also the shall always be kept in view, one upon a lap projecting from the end of the web (commonly called a Tab) and the other upon the outside lap or fold;—and the Weavers, Manufacturers, and Dealers were defined to take notice, That no Piece of Ossaburgs, or other Coarse Linen, should be lapped up or sent, either to the Home or the Foreign Market, in any different form."

And whereas it has been represented to the said Trustees, That some Weavers, and even Dealers and Exporters, are still in the practice of putting up their Cloth in a different form, by which the buyer is deceived as to its general quality, and the reputation of the Manufacture is injured—Heneroer, the Trustees do hereby certify to all whom it may concern, That their Stampmasters and other Officers are instructed to attend to the strict enforcement of the said tegulation. At the same time, they carnelly recommend to the Manufacturers, Dealers, and Exporters, to consider, that their town interest is instinately connected with the preservation of the character of the Manufacture, and in check-

ider, that their own interest is intimately connected with the prefervation of the character of the Manufacture, and in checking every unfair practice that may prove injurious to it.

From RICHARD MARNELL, Esq. To Mr CHING, Apothecary, No. 4, Cheapside.

THE LORD CHIEF BARON having done me the honour to state his eldest son's case, and recommended that my son should try your WORM LOZENGES, as their cases were perfectly analogous, he did so last June, and to my great happiness, found immediate relief, and he has, by taking a few piness, found immediate relief, and he has, by taking a few dozes since, been cured of a merciless disease, Convol. sion Firs, which, notwithstanding the prescriptions of the most eminent physicians, for three years, sea-bathing, and every other means that could be thought of, wore him down to an alarming degree, and I dreaded the most fatal consequences. To his Lordship's humanity, and the use of your Lozenges, I impute my Son's, existence now, and if you require any further testimony, I shall be always ready to give it, and remain, Sir, Your obedient Servant,

Sir, Your obedient Servant,

23th February, 1799

From an eminent Aporthecary at Edinburgh,
To Mr CHING, Apothecary No. 4, Cheapside.

Sir,

Sin, Some of the first Medical Characters in this City have, with that candour for which they are to eminently distinguished, prescribed your Lozenges with the greatest success, and it is certainly the most efficacious vermifuge I have ever used. I may also add, that some of the Professors of the College mention it as the most effectual in Worm Cases of any Medicine they are acquainted with. I have some worms in my possession, voided by a son of Colanel Rudyard, by taking your Lozenges, after every other medicine had failed; which worms are of a very singular and uncommon form. One of them has the appearance of a crab, and two resembles the catterpillar. I have promised them to the Professor of Midwifery, to exhibit when he Lectures on Worms. No person, to whom I have shewed them, seems to know to what species they belong.

I am, Dear Sir, with much esteem,

Edisburgh, Your very obedient humble Servant,

FALL OF FOYERS

THE INN, commonly called the GFNERAL's HALL, at the Fall of Foyers, together with an Extensive adjoining Farm. The general resort of the first company in the country to this inn, both from turiosity to eee the surrounding accurry, and the noted Fall of Foyers, and from its being the stage from inverness to Fort Augustus, offers every prospect of success to a good inn-keeper; not only so, but were the rim well finished, and kept, it is likely to become the resort of sportsmen, especially such as are found of angling, as perhaps no situation excells it in this respect. The adjoining farm consists of both arable and pasture land, where the inn-keeper may raise every convenience for his house, besides sheep and cattle for market, and is perhaps one of the safest farms in the nooth, and plentifully supplied with limestone. As it is the wise of the from the commonded tensor, who is likely to suswar his views in this respect, both to flaish the house and offices, and improve the farm.

I Am to request you will inform their Lordships, that I took possession of Civita Vecchia, Corneto, and Tolfa, on the 29th and 30th ultimo, with 20 marines and seamen of the Culloden and Minotaur, and have already embarked and sent off near 3000 of the enemy; I now wait for transports to get off the remainder, which I suppose about 2.00 more.

General Bouchard takes possession of Rome at the same time by the same treaty: all public property to be restored; their Lordships may rely on every exertion on my part to put the capitulation in full force, and trust I shall succeed. I have the honour to be, &c.

Six, Civita Vecchia, Oct. 5. 1799.
In obedience to orders from Lord Nelson, I have the honor to send you, for their Lordships information, a copy of the arricles of capitulation I have made with the French General Garnier, to clear the Roman State. As I knew the French Garnier, to clear the Roman State. As I knew the French had all the valuables of the Roman state packed up ready for embarking, and the coast at Civita Vecchia, forming a deep bay, with hard W. S. W. gales and heavy sea, which prevent ed the blockade from being so close as was necessary to prevent the enemy from carrying off those truty valuable articles, I therefore thought it best to grant the liberal terms I have, to get them out of this country, where they have committed every excess possible.

I trust what I have done may meet their Lordships appro-

REVOLUTION. COUNCIL OF ANCIENTS.

From the Moniteur of the 19th Brumaire (Nov. 10). appears that on the preceding day the Representative ornet moved the Council of Antients, in the name of Committee, to adopt the following decree :-The Council of Ancients, in virtue of the 103d and 103d articles of the Constitution, decrees as follows :-1. The Legislative Body shall be transferred to the nune of St Cloud, where the two Councils will hold their fittings in the two wings of the palace.

2. They shall repair thither at noon of to-morrow the 19th Brumaire (10th Nov.) Any continuation of their functions or deliberations elfewhere, and before that time, is prohibited.

3. General Buonaparte is charged with the execution the prefent decree. He shall take every measure necessary for the safety of the National Representation.

The General commanding the 17th military division, the guard of the Legislative Body, the stationary national guards, the troops of the line, who may be without the commune of Paris, the constitutional district, and the whole extent of the flation of the 17th division, are put directly under his orders, and commanded to acknow-ledge him in that capacity. All the civizens shall assist him with all their ability, when called upon to do so.

4. General Buonaparte shall be called into the midst of the Council, to receive a copy of the present decree, and to take an oath. He shall confult with the Committees of Inspection of the two Councils.

5. The prefent decree shall be forthwith communication cated by meffage, to the Council of Five Hundred, and the Executive Directory; it shall be printed, posted up, and transmitted to all the communes of the Republic by extraordinary couriers.

The Council of Ancients also decreed the following address to the French people :-

The Council of Ancients to the French Nation. Frenchmen, the Council of Ancients exercises the right, delegated to it by the tozd article of the Conftitution, of changing the residence of the Legislative Body. It exercises this right in order to suppress the factions which aim at subjugating the National Repretentation, and in order to reffore internal peace. It exercifes this right, in order also to restore that external peace, which humanity and your lengthened facrifices demand. The common fafety and common prosperity are the objects of this Constitutional measure. shall be accomplished. The question was lost fight of, and the debate turned upon a proposition made by several members, of sending a message to the Council of Ancients, to demand information on the extraordinary decree under which the Council was affembled.

During the debates the following letter was received from the Director Barras, and read by a fecretary :-CITIZENS REPRESENTATIVES,

" Engaged in public affairs folely from a passion for liberty, I consented to accept the first magistracy of the State, in order that I might support her in times of peril, by my zeal to protect the patriots who had exposed themselves in her cause, from the attempts of her nemies, and to enfure to the defenders of the country, those particular attentions which could not have been more constantly paid to them, than by a citizen who had formerly been a witness of their heroic virtues, and who was ever affected by their wants.

Some members proposed to proceed to the election of new Director in his stead-others opposed that proceeding. In the mean time General Buonaparte entered the

After a quarter of an hour's tuniult, the Prefident attempted to speak; but was interrupted by a member, who proposed to put Gen. Buonaparte out of the pro-tection of the law. Another cried, it is necessary to make a great example.

Some members called out that Buonaparte wanted to make himself a king-others that he had tarnished all his glory.

TALBOT moved, that the whole Council proceed in their robes to the foldiers. Let us, cried another, in the fame garb, proceed to Paris.

Lucien Buonaparte demanded to refign the office of Prefident, but the Council refused to comply with his withes. Immediately after which an Adjusant mounted the Tribune, and ordered his foldiers to carry away Lucien Buonaparte out of the Affembly.

During the confusion which ensued from this act, a detachment of grenadiers entered with quick flep, and with fixed bayonets drove the members from the Hall in presence of the General Buonaparte. He immediately quitted the Hall, and harangued the foldiers, who furrounded him with testimonies of the most lively interest and attention.

Buonaparte was wounded in the face during the disturbance which took place upon his entering the Council of Five Hundred. One of the grenadiers faved him from the thrust of a poignard.

Villetard, reporter from the Committee, proposed the following refolution:

PARIS-November 10.

In the middle of the night between the 8th and 9th; a great number of troops marched in file to the Palace of Elders. Buonaparte, attended by Moreau, Besthies and a ery numerous Etat Major, repaired to the Palace of the Thuilleries, the entrances to which were barred against the citizens. They were summoned to it by the Members of the Committee of Infpectors, who were joined in a few minutes after by the Director, Sieyes and Roger Ducos. At half after nine o'clock the Council of Ancients passed the decree, of which we give a copy in the report of the fitting.

This decree was immediately notified to Buon who repaired to the Council of Ancients, and took the oaths to execute the acts of the Legislative Body. oaths to execute the acts of the their country should receive the fruits of their factif.

Buonaparte visited the Thuilleries, where he haras gued the troops, who made the air refound with thous " Vive Buonaparte! Vive la Republique?"

When Buonaparte presented himself at the bar of the ouncil of Ancients, he was accompanied by Generals Berthier, Lefebvre, Moreau, and some others. We remarked in the speech he pronounced, the affurances he gave, that the events of the conclusion of the 18th century would be more altonishing than those of any other century.

The Directors Sieyes and Ducos are the only ones who figned the order for announcing by the telegraph the decree of the Council of Ancients. Their colleagues did not appear to take any active part in what passed. Poultier announced their dismission as certain, and af-ferts that Marescot, Berthier, and Talleyrand, are defigned by the majority of the Councils to replace them.

The Quay of Voltaire, and the fireets leading to the Thuilleries, are filled with troops. The Luxemburg is invested. The greatest tranquillity reigns through out Paris.

The transforming of the Councils to St Cloud wa conducted with the utmost calmnes. Buonaparte male his appearance there at noon, accompanied by the whole of his Staff; about an hour after Sieyes and Roger Ducos arrived. The Council of Five Hundred placed themselves in the Green House; that of the Elders is the Gallery of Mignard. Valt rooms, and by half too large. An immense concourse of people surrounded the gates with eager curiofity.

It is faid that the measures adopted by the Council of Elders were fuggefted by the defire of disconcering the projects that had been planned in an affembly at Hotel de Salm, where fome very prominent chands were observed. These projects had for object to the vert the two Councils into a National Convention from which were to be difearded certain perfors, in to invest the Government in a Committee of Police Safety. It is added that a well known Public For tionary promoted this project, and charged himself with bringing over Buonaparte; but that the General, in from feconding his deligns, had given information if them to the Council of Elders. The order for shutting the barriers, which was if fued vefterday, was immediately recalled.

Gohier, Moulins, and Barras were affembled at the Directorial Palace when Roger Ducos came to enquire whether certain reports that had reached him were true His colleagues having informed him that they had me information of them-" I will go in quest of it," find he; and immediately went to the Infpectors of the Council of Elders.

During t'at time, Sieyes was riding about alone in the Luxembourg garden, where his aid-de-camp Defonval came and joined him. He afterwards went to the Inspectors of the Council of Elders.

About ten o'clock Gohier, Barras, and Moulins called for the commandant of the 17th division, that he might give an account of his conduct to the Directory. His answer was, that he no longer had the command of the 17th division; that it was under the orders of Go eral Buonaparte, from whom he had just been receiring instructions pursuant to the decree.

At eleven o'clock Barras fent in his relignation, and Buonaparte gave orders for a detachment of Dragoo to efcost him to Gros Bois, where he had expreded with to retire.

Seyes and Roger Ducos voluntarily gave in their refignation. On quitting the Council of Elders, Buonaparte m

The most perfect calm prevails at Paris. The two following proclamations of General Buonaparte have been posted up every where:—

BUONAPARTE, General' in Chief, to the Citizens composing the stationary National Guard of Paris. 18th Brunnaire (9th Nov.) 8th year of the Republic, one and indivisible.

CITIZENS,
The Council of Ancients, the depository of the national wisdom, has just issued the following decree, which is authorised by the 102d and 103d articles of the Constitutional acts.

It is charged me to take measures for the fafety of the National Representation. Its translation is neces-fary, but only momentary. The Legislative Body will also concur in rescuing the Representation from the imminent danger into which the diforganization of all parts of the Administration has conducted us.

In this important critis, it requires the union and confidence of the patriors. Rally around it, that is the only means of placing the Republic upon the basis of civil liberty, internal happiness, victory, and peace.

Wive la Republique.

BUONAPARTE. BERTHIER. (A true copy)

BUONAPARTE, General in Chief, to the Soldiers, 18th Eru-maire, November 9.

The extraordinary decree of the Council of Ancients is conformable to the 102d article of the Constitutional act. It places in me the command of the city and army I have accepted the appointment, to fecond the mea-fures which the Council is about to take, and which are all in favour of the people. The Republic has been badly governed these two years. You have hoped that my return would put an end to fo many evils. You have celebrated it with an union which impofes upon me the duties I fulfil. You will fulfil yours, and fecond your General, with the energy, the firmness, and the confidence I have always beheld in you.

BUONAPARTE. (A true copy) BERTHIER.

The Councils are not, as has been stated, suppressed. the Councils are not, as has been trated, suppressed but re-organifed. One hundred and fifty members have been expelled; and 25 members, cholen by the new rulers, are to exercise the authority of the Legislative bodies till March next, when the Councils are to resume their functions, unless previously assembled by the Executive. Eighteen members of the Council of Five Hundred, amongst whom are Jourdan, Briot, &c. have been arrested as the enemies of Buonaparte! Barras and Moulins have likewife been arrefled, charged with having attempted to usurp the sovereign authority, and to divide the Republic.

A general change has taken place in the several departments of the state. Berthier is appointed Minister of War, Genissieux Minister of Justice, and Rheinhard Minister for English Africa. Minister for Foreign Affairs.

The following is an extract of a dialogue between a Member of the Ancients and one of the Five Hundred, published in the Redacteur. After explaining how the Constitution warrants the Council of Ancients in removing the place of fitting of the Legislature, and affuring the citizens of Paris that the Councils will refume ring the citizens of Paris that the Councils will refume their fittings in that city, it proceeds—

Member of free Hundred—" But what is finally to be done? What is the great object of deliberation, on account of which the Elders think there should be so extraordinary a scope for the freedom of opinion?"

Elders—" Do the necessaries which are about to be adopted give you uneasiness my friend? You certainly was not alarmed when nothing was doing, and can any thing worse be done than such complete inaction? You do not then perceive that we were very near the moment in which it would have been impossible to have done any thing, to have carried on war or to have made peace; to have recovered our liberty, our property, or the Republican Constitution, which is the palladium of both! You are then ignorant that the spoliating law of the forced loan has not relieved our finances; that the hostage law has kindled a civil war; that a part of the revenues of the 8th year is swallowed up in requisitions; that every species of public credit is extinct; that all the expences of individuals, which constitute the earnings of the tradesnan and mechanic, are suspended; that all the manufactures are shut up; that we are entering into a winter, in which the poor are threatened with the absolute want of employment, and the rich must be without security; that peace alone can terminate so many calamities; that the restoration of our constitution, shaken as it is every where, can alone prevent the return of them, and put an end at once to the doubts of foreign powers with respect to the negociations for peace, and to the terror of the citizens, who have been always placed between tyranny with respect to the negociations for peace, and to the terror of the citizens, who have been always placed between tyranny and anarchy.

such, my friends, are the objects to which we must look "Such, my friends, are the objects to which we must look with promptitude and mature attention, at a distance from restless, turbulent, and wicked minds, and from factions which are hired in the midst of us hy foreign powers. These are the reasons why we must place between Paris and the authorities of the nation, between intrigue and enlightened talents, between perveyse and parriotic minds, the distance of some learning that the property of the mature of the mature of the mature of the midstance of the source of the mature of t tween perverse and patriotic minds, the distance of some leagues, which prevent improper and dangerous communications."

MEMBER OF FIVE HUNDRED.—" Between ourselves, I must, however, observe, my friend, that I dread the interference of Guonaparte in this business. His reputation, the consideration in which he is held, the just confidence which the soldiers have in his talents, and, above all, those very selents, may give him a formidable ascendency over the destiny of the Republic.—Should the fate of liberty depend upon him? were he to prove a Cæsar or a Cromwell a Cæsar or a Cromwell -

Elder.-" A Casar! a Cromwell! bad parts to play, ob-ELDER.—" A Casar! a Cromwell! bad parts to play, obrolate parts, unworthy of a man of sense; us not those which a good man would adopt. It is thus Buonaparte has explained himself on several occasions. "It would be sacralige," said he once, "to entertain an idea of making an attack on a Representative Government in this enlightened age of liberty."—
"None but a fool," said he at another time, "would wish in the folly of his heart to destroy the pledge of the Republic against the Royalty of Europe, after having maintained it with so much glory and so many perils." But, my friend, what is, in fact, this conduct of Buonaparte? He is called upon; he attends. The Council commands; he obeys. This is the whole.

Do you know what would have rendered him strongly suspected in my eyes, and made him a subject of just alarms for liberty? Not a precipitate acceptance, not even an eager offer of his arms and his renown, but his refusal. The Council of Elders, having conceived views for a general pacification, for the establishment of internal order, for the restoration of liberty, property, and the security of the Republican Constitution, requiring Buonaparte merely to protect the translation of the Legislative Body, and Buonaparte refusing thus to contribute to the public safety. In such event, this is what, in my opinion, every distribution has dittated this refusal. All is lets that the professional profession of the 2d, for Gibraltar. Do you know what would have rendered him strongly sur eyes towards him, shall stretch out his arms, and solicit from him vengetnee, or justice and protection; then, at order to be invested with absolute power, he will have nothing to do, but merely to consent to receive it. Royalty itself, and such a royalty! will voluntarily present itself to him. The nation, debased by misfortune, will offer to him a sceptre for iron. Such is the inference, my friend, which I should draw from the refusal of Buonaparte; and it would be against such refusal is should invoke the poignard of Brutus. But liberty, the Republic, the country sigh for the acceptance, simple and plain, of a power given by the wise patriots who, compose the Council of Elders. Ah! who could be more deserving of their confidence than the warrior who has so often displayen his love of liberty, who has avenged her with so much glory of so many of her enemies, to whom she is indebeed for her preservation, and who oyes him so much in return, they would attack his valour and his genius?"

----Government, it is faid, are in possession of the papers one day latter date than those we have quoted, which give a report of a fitting of the Council of Addients at St Cloud, of the 11th inst. when the new form of provitional Government was established, and they passed a

In this fitting we hear that Buonaparte made a speech, in which he denounced Barras and Moulins. He faid, that "When he seturned from Egypt he found his country distracted by factions—he was courted by each of them, but he was seduced by none. He has sought only for the people, and he would act only for the people. Barras and Moulins had held out to him the offer that they should divide France among them, but he had rejected the corrupt and fcandalous temptation; and he felt it to be his duty to denounce them to the indigna-tion of the French people. This horrible conduct it was which had determined him to accept the command which the Council of Elders had offered him; and he would only use it to preserve the liberty for which they fought, and the Conflictation which they had atchieved."

Barras is at his country house; Moulins, and the other Directors are at Paris. One hundred and seventy of the principal Jacobins are under arrest.

A proclamation was iffued to tranquilize the people, and they took a new oath of fidelity to the Kepublic, and to its integrity, but omitted the words " Haired to

This remarkable fact certainly leaves fome opening for the speculations affoat in favour of Royalism, as it may be supposed that the Triumvirate have it in agitation to invest a King with the limited authority lately held by the Directory; yet retaining in all its plenti-tude the Republican fyitem.

EDINBURGH-NOVEMBER 21.

In the foregoing columns of this paper, our readers will find under the title Francs, intelligence probably the most extraordinary that has reached this country since the commencement of the French Revolution. Bu-ONAPARTE, who has hitherto borne a most conspicuous character in the annals of the late campaigns, and whole enterprizes in Egypt, Syria, &c. together with his e-fcape from thence, has excited fo much of the attention of mankind, now appears in fcenes no less interesting, and has affumed a character which Europe must look upon with equal aftooithment and expectation. It is but little that we yet know of what has occurred in the recent convultion that has taken place in Paris; but that little furnishes a valt deal of important matter for conjecture and animalyerion. The Conftitution of France, which was lately fanctioned by the existing authorities in that country, feems now to be completely overthrown, for although the lhadow of fome of its parts does exift, yet the fubliance has been fo violated, that it is impossible to recognize one feature of stability in the whole fystem.

We cannot precifely fay what has led to this afto-nishing event. The conduct of BUONAPARTE has been nithing event. The conduct of BUONAPARTE has been imputed to various motives; one is, that in his expedition to Egypt, he was completely duped by the then Executive Government, who, observing his popularity with the army, and fearing his ascendancy might ultimately prove fatal to their power, and their views, projected that expedition in order to get quit of a man whom they considered dangerous to remain in the country, and against whom they, at the same time, found themfelves unable to exercife any act of personal violence. The General, it is thought, has now discovered their motive, and his present conduct is said to be sounded on a principle of revenge against their persidy towards of an opposite party.

Sieves is a character of great penetration, and probably the first statesman in that country.—During the whole progress of the Revolution it is generally underwhole progrets of the Revolution it is generally under-flood he has dictated the measures pursued in each cam-paign, but it was only of late that he could be prevail-ed upon to take a responsible situation, and his first ap-pearance in a public capacity was as Ambassador at the Court of Berlin. His mission there, it is said, pre-vented the King of Prussia from acceding to the pro-posal of the British Cabinet to join the coalition; and it was observable that the Prussian Monarch at first was it was oblevable that the Prussan Monarch at first was certainly inclined to agree, but just at that moment Starks promulgated the secret articles which the Emperor of Germany had agreed to, by which part of his Majesty's dominious and his interest in Germany would have been materially affected. This, it is said, completely determined the King of Prussa to refuse his acquiescence in the views of the Allies. From the Court of Ballio has as called to the office of Nicolar when of Berlin he was called to the office of Director, when the late overturn took place, and no fooner was he pla-ced there than he fecured himself a majority of the five, and also a commanding influence in the Council of Ancients, who, we fee, have readily acquiefced in his meafures, by removing the fittings of both Councils from Paris to St Cloude. BUDNAPARTE and he appear to be of one mind, and while the former is the beit qualified for managing the army, the latter will conduct the machine of government agreeably to their concerted-

The Articles of the Conftitution upon which the Council of Ancients have acted in the above manner. are as follows :--

The Council of Ancients may change the residence of th Legislative Body; it indicates in that case a new place and time, at which the two Councils are bound to repair thicher. The decree of the Council of Ancients upon this object is irrevocable.

Even on the day of this decree, neither the one nor the other of the Councils can any longer deliberate in the commune where they reside till then.

The members who shall continue the functions there shall be deemed guilty of high treason, and of an offence against the section of the Republic.

It within the 20 days after that need by the Council of Ancients, the majority of each of the two Councils have not made known to the Republic their arrival at the new place indicated, the Administrators of Department, or, failing them, the Civil Tribunals of Department, shall convoke the Primary Assemblies to proceed to the formation of a New Legislative Body, by the election of 250 deputies for the Council of Ancients, and of 500 for the other Council. Whatwill be the refult of thise measures no one can fay, but judging from the fentiments which SIEYES and BUONAPARTE have already avowed, peace appears near at hand, that indeed they have declared to be their object. It is also faid that SIEVES is so convinced of the inability of France to carry on the war much longer, that he is ready to yield many of the points on which the nations have differed.

In the conduct of BUONAPARTE there appears an exact copy of the conduct of OLIVER CROMWELL. It is reported that BUONAPARTE effected his escape from Egypt by permission of Sir Sydney Smith, with whom, it is said, he agreed to exercise all his influence in France to suppress the violent party. By others it is reported, that SIEVES feeing the ruined state of affairs, had fent a messenger to BUONAPARTE, wging him by all means to return.

In the decree passed by the Council of Five Hundred, the third article is in the following very emphatic to move it in any manner whatever.

This Committee is invested with the full powers of she Di-rectory, and specially commissioned to organize order in all parts of the Administration, to re-establish internal tranquishity, and to procure an bonourable and solid peace.

After uling many of the most approved remedies to no purpose, she was advised to make trial of a box of your Rheumatic Pills, which she begin to take in the end of April last. She foon began to derive considerable benefit from them, and perform the property of the p fifted in a remedy that feemed to prove fo very efficacious. Af-ter taking two boxes more, the is now, by the bleffing of God, restored to her wonted health.

I attribute the cure, under Divine Providence, to your Pills, and I hope you will make this public for the benefit of those who may be affilized with the like severe complaints.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

Bulhirney, Fifebire, 7th October 1799. GEORGE WALLACE.
We attest that the above is true, John Thomson, Minister.

are in wood and pasture, and the remainder arable. The house is large and commodious, and, with some alterations and repairs, may be made a most convenient and comfortable residence for a large family.

The farm offices are uncommonly complete and substantial. The whole estate is completely inclosed and subdivided, and is in the highest state of cultivation, and (except a small detached part let to substantial tenants) may, together with the house, garden, and offices, be all entered to at Martinmas first. The plantations are in the most thriving state, and the situation, on the banks of a remarkably fine trouting stream, adorned with hanging woods, is uncommonly beautiful, dry, and healthy, There are two roads to the turnpike leading from Dundee to Abroath, Montrose, &c. by different approaches to the house, which is only four miles distant from the former populous and thriving town, remarkable for its excellent markets. The grounds, as well as the adjoining country, abound in game. The distance from the sea is only a mile and a half, by an excellent turnpike road, terminating in a fishing town, where there is excellent sea-bathing, and where coal and lime can be imported, and grain shipped, and adjoining to which there is a tract of links and sands for twelve miles along the shore, excellently adapted for riding or airing in all seasons. The estate affords a Freehold Qualification, and the rent roll and valuation put on it (the greater part not having heen under lease for upwards of fifty years) by persons of the rent roll and valuation put on it (the greater part not having been under lease for upwards of fifty years) by persons of the most acknowledged skill, are to be seen in the hands of Mess. TON-MILN, EAST FORTUNE, MYRESIDE, and GOOD-FELLOWS LAND, lying in the county of Haddington, altogether in one lot; or, as several applications have been made for a division of the estates into lots, the proprietor will now treat for a sale thereof, in the following lots, viz.

Lot I. Comprehending the Lands and Estate of Fantassie, lying in the parish of Prestonhaugh, on the south side of the river Tyne, and the Lands lying between the river and the estate of Smeaton, all as at present in the occupation of Mr George Rennie, with the Waulkmiln of Houston, possessed by Andrew Meikle, containing 352 A. I. R. 9 F. of very rich Andrew Meikle, containing 352 A. I. R. 9 F. of very rich land, together with the SalmonFishings belonging to said lands.

Lor H. The Lands of Linton, with the Miln of Linton, at present under lease to Mr Rennie, consisting of var acres and 33 falls, with the feus of Linton and Common belonging thereto, all lying on the north side of the river Tyne, and within the parish of Prestonhaugh.

Lot III. The Lands and Estate of East Fortune, Myreside, and Goodfellows Lands, lying in the parish of Atholstoneford, and consisting of 675 acres, as at present possessed by John and James Howdens.

These Lands are delightfully situated in the richest and most beautiful part of East Lothian, and are in the highest state of cultivation. They lie about twenty miles from Edinburgh, and about five miles from Dunbar and Haddington. The river Type divides lots first and second, on each of which there is a Miln, and a command of water, with an cligible situation for carrying on an extensive Manufactory, and the high road from Edinburgh to London intersects the pro-

On Lot first there is a valuable Limestone Quarry, wrought by the tenant, affording an abundant supply of lime, not only for his own farm, but also for sale, and which the proprietor has also an unlimited power to work for his own account, on has also an ullimited power to work for his own account, on paying surface damages.

The greater part of the Village of Linton and a Distillery are situated on Lot second, and the proprietor, besides the 121 acres before mentioned, has right to a Common in the neighbourhood, containing 60 acres of very improveable land, subject to certain servitudes of pasturage.

The tack duty of the above lands, which is at present only from 9001 to 10001 consists chiefly of wheat, barley, and oats, payable either in kind, or in the option of the proprietor, at the rate of the highest fiars for the county of Haddington, but as the subsisting leases were agreed on about forty years ago, and for grassums paid by the tenants, the present rent is no rule by which to estimate their value, as they would yield at least three times the present rent on the expiry of the leases.

On each of the Lots there are substantial Dwelling Houses and Farm Steadings, which belong to the proprietor, and there are several beautiful and most eligible situations for a Mansion.

It is supposed that there is Coal on each of the Lots, but particularly on Lot third, and were coals to be wrought on this estate, it would yield a very great rent to the proprietor.

The Lands hold of the Crown, and stand valued in the cess books at 21961. 18s. 4d. Scots, affording five freehold qualifications within the county of Haddington.

The title deeds, rentals, and plans of the estates, may be seen in the hands of James and Alexander Frasers, writers to the signer: and any person desirous of purchasing by private It is supposed that there is Coal on each of the Lots, b

A CAPITAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

THE HOUSE, POLICY, and ESTATE of MOLLANCE, lying in the parish of Crossinichael and stewarty of Kirkendbright, rented at 1020l. Sterling, and consisting of about 941 Scots acres, of which about 64 acres are covered with old wood or thriving plantations. The foil is allowed to be amongst the best in that sertile district, which is justly considered the Kernel of the Stewarty. The rivers run and the country slopes to fouth-east; and, from the dryness of its foil, is warmer, and has more fair weather, than most parts of the kingdom north of the Trent and the Mersey, being protected from the cold fogs of the East Sea by the Scotch mountains, and from the stouch mountains of West Galloway.

These lands are fituated in a fine sporting country, and lie alongst the great road from Dumfries to Port-Patrick, about four-teen miles from the former, and within three of the market and post town of Castlo-Douglas, and five of a harbour, where lime and coal are castly imported from, and grain, &c. exported to the west coalt of England. On one of these farms there is an excellent stuation for an inn, precisely midway betwixt Dumfries and Gatchouse, an advantage not possessed by a set of the most intelligent, industrious, and weathy senants in the country, and are all well inclosed and subdivided, having convenient new built farm steadings, sheltered with belts of planting. There still remains some marle upon the estate undug, and plenty may be had from Cralingwark Loch, in the neighbourhood.

This estate affords four Frechold Qualifications to vote for a Representative in Parliament, all on distinct farms, by old extent. It is intended to sell one of the farms at the extremity of the estate, with a frechold qualification, apart.

The proprietor has right to the teinds, which were also valued in 1766; and the lands are free-from all attriction, except to the barony mill, which makes a part of the fusice in 1766; and the lands are free-from all attriction, except to the barony mill; which makes a part of the fublect to be fold. The house is most fulficient, and fit for the accommodation of a large family. There is a complete fet of offices, with a productive dovecoat; ponds stocked with sih of various kinds; a garden, orchard, and fruit walls in full bearing. The surrounding domain consists of about 150 acres in the lawn, and eight inclosures, with unusually strong sences and easy access. There are good well haid out reads through the whole estate; and from a number of genteel families living in the neighbourhood, it is in every respect a desirable residence.

As these lands are now positively to be fold, persons desirous of such a purchase ought to come forward without delay.

For particulars apply to the Proprietor at Blackwood, by Dumfries; or to Alexander Blair, writer to the figure, No. 24, George Street, Edinburgh.

I.OT XVII. Will comprehend All and Whole the SUPE-RIORITY LANDS of STENHOUSE, holding immediately of the Crown, lying as above-mentioned; and the feu duties thereto belonging, payable by the respective feuars thereof, extending in whole to the sum of about 2741. Sterling of feu duties yearly, converting the victual feu duties, at an average of the fiar prices of the county of Edinburgh, for the last three years, with the casualties of superiority appertaining thereto. These lands or feus stand separately valued in the cess books of the county, at about 6471. Scots money; so that the purchasers thereof will be entitled to a freehold qualification in the county, &c. and if the same are not sold in county, the superiority and feu duties will be exposed to sale in such lots or subdivions as may best accommodate the feuars who shall incline to reduce their feu duties, or other purchasers.

As the whole of the foresaid lots, excepting the Superiority Lands of Stenhouse, have been formerly advertised, and at well known, it is altogether superfluous to enlarge or expatiate at present upon the many advantages arising from situation and otherwise, which will be derived by the purchasers of the same; or to point out very minutely the different seams of coal to be found therein, all perfectly known and ascertained over the country, and which, from the vicinity to Edinburgh, must undoubtedly be of great value. Therefore, it is merely necessary to notice, for the information of intending purchasers, that, in consequence of the sale of the mansian-house, offices, &c. of Drum, the several lots now advertised, will it necessary to notice, for the information of intending purcussers, that, in consequence of the sale of the mansion-house, offices, &c. of Drum, the several lots now advertised, will be peremptorily sold upon the day of sale before expressed, according to the inclination of purchasers, without regard at all to the order in which the same are above placed. And it has also to be mentioned, that there still remains a freehold qualification to be added or given the purchaser of some one or more of the lots, as sall be afterwards fixed on and determined.

For all further particulars application can be made to Charles Fozard, residing at the Drum, or Robert Dundas, writer to the signet; from either of whom engraved plans of the premisses may be obtained, with every necessary information respecting the terms and conditions of sale, or the endurance of the leases; and the title-deeds, &c. will be shewn, upon applying to Mr Dundas,
